Why bother telling you

- Because
  - It might be your turn next
  - We DO look at Tab Y and have to respond
  - Probably by calling you
  - It takes more effort to correct your report than get it right the first time
- Real examples
- Written vs. behavioral (we've already covered behavioral errors….)

- One paragraph to describe a Human Factor (HF).

- Items in Tab Y and Tab T do not match

- Items in Tab Y and Tab Y do not match I.E. narrative HFs are not in Nano code list (or vice versa)

- Mishap number (header) incorrect throughout entire Tab Y (from previous mishap)

- In non-operator caused mishaps, no HF on non-operators

- "Eloquence" in War and Peace
  - No Pulitzer's given…

- Tirades advancing an agenda

- Letting the IO write "total body fragmentation" in the 14 day message
  - fatally injured is adequate

- Not explaining irregular lab results
  - BAT (2 hrs after mishap "I'm alive" celebration)

- Creative confabulation I.E. kinetic disassembly = crash
